

MÁTRA (47 km – 53')

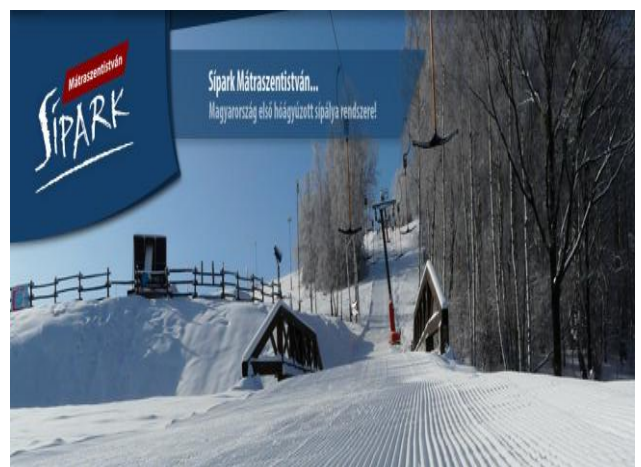

Mátra is a mountain range in northern Hungary situated at easy reach from Eger. Mátra can be divided into several readily distinguishable parts. The so-called Central Mátra consists of the plateau of Mátra ridge and the groups of the volcanic cones of Galyatető (965 m) and Kékestető, which is the country's highest peak, 1014 m. Steep, rugged slopes, screeds, and slides alternate with one another, covered with closed beech forests. Gentler slopes and parallel valleys flow down to the south. From the vineyard-covered landscape of the foot of the Mátra travelers can arrive at the wooded mountains by cars or buses.

Mátra is the center for mountain based sporting activities.

Activities: hiking, bicycling, mountain bike, eco tour, museums, exhibitions, county houses, watch towers, churches, castles, Para gliding, rock climbing, Mountain cart, Monster roller,

Skiing, Zoo, Adventure park for both children and adults,

Hunting: Hirsch, deer, wild boar, rabbit, moufflon,

Wintersport

Outdoor activities

Tracking and hiking

Outdoor activities

Hirsch-Stag

Beech forest